“A Plastic Ocean”

A Plastic Ocean is a film to make you think. Think, and then act. We must take action on our dependence on plastic. We have been producing plastic in huge quantities since the 1940s. Drink bottles, shopping bags, toiletries and even clothes are made of plastic.

What happens to all the rest? This is the question the film ‘A Plastic Ocean’ answers. It begins as a journey to film the largest animal on the planet, the blue whale. But during the journey the filmmakers make the shocking discovery of a huge, thick layer of plastic floating in the middle of the Indian Ocean. The documentary has premiered for years ago, and is now available on Netflix.

A lot of research has been into the film. We see how all the plastic we are dumping in the ocean has killed marine species. In the second half, the filmmakers look at what we can do to reverse the tide of plastic flowing around the world. They present short-term and long-term solutions. These include avoiding plastic containers and ‘single-use’ plastic products as much as possible.

We make a huge amount of plastic. In terms of plastic bags alone, we use five hundred billion worldwide annually. Over 300 million tons of plastic are produced every year, and at least 8million of those are dumped into the oceans. Once you have seen the film, you’ll realise the time is now and we all have a role to play.
