SECOND TERM ENGLISH EXAM

Read the text carefully then do the following activities

A/Comprehension (7pts)

Millions of American parents spend countless hours trying to figure out how to help their children get better grades. They want to take a page from Finland which scores near the top in the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA) and places the United States at 21st among 34 countries.

There are three things that have positively affected the quality of Finnish schools that are absent in American ones. First, Finland has built a school system that has over time strengthened educational equity. This means early childhood education for all children, funding all schools so that they can better serve those with special educational needs and access to health for all children. Second, play constitutes a significant part of individual growth and learning in Finnish schools. Every class must be followed by a 15-minute recess break so that children can spend time outside on their own activities. Besides, schooldays are also shorter in Finland than in US and primary schools keep the homework load to a minimum. This helps students have time for their own hobbies and friends when school is over.

In America, school districts have reduced or eliminated recess in order to free more time for core academics. Additionally, education in US is too much defined by testing and data and places too much reliance in the marketplace choice. Finally, more students in America have novice teachers in their classrooms today than ever.
